

The Camargue is based on the short wheelbase version of the Renault Master and comes with a factory high roof, giving an integral steel body with full height side and rear doors.

Although only 16 feet long, the Camargue has a full size shower compartment with cassette toilet, fixed hand basin and vanity unit allowing its occupants to be totally self sufficient when required.

Opposite the shower is the kitchen, equipped with a stainless steel two-burner hob and grill, matching sink and a modern 12v compressor fridge. An absorption fridge can be specified if required.

Both cab seats swivel to make a large four-seater dinette or two single beds in the front. The forward facing rear seats both have three-point seat belts and head restraints, with the rear passengers sitting just behind the cab where the ride is comfortable with an excellent view out.

The Camargue Extra is based on the medium wheelbase Renault van and is a half metre longer than the Camargue. The extra length is used on the living/sleeping area where there is a large settee behind the driver and one forward facing seat on the nearside. In the Extra, the bedroom can be made up into two single beds or a large double. The shower and kitchen are the same as on the Camargue with the addition of a larger 60 litre fridge.

The Camargue is built to a high specification and standard equipment includes a diesel blown air heater, drawing fuel directly from the vehicle's diesel tank, a Truma mains/gas water heater, mains hook-up, auxiliary charger and a large 110 AH auxiliary battery. There is an ample sized wardrobe, numerous roof cupboards, under-seat drawers and a gas box for two 4.5kg Calor gas bottles.

The Renault Master is also exceptionally well-equipped with remote central locking, steering column radio controls and heated rear windows. The superb new 2.2-litre 90bhp common rail turbo diesel engine is fitted as standard with the option of the 115bhp 2.5-litre engine, which also comes with ABS.

The Camargue is a motorhome designed to accommodate two people in luxury and with its superb washroom offers so much more than most motorhomes its size.
